Máire Cunningham, Head of Enterprise

Beauchamps

Beauchamps is one of Ireland's leading full service law firms. We work with start-ups, multinational companies, owner managed businesses, financial institutions, and government and public bodies.

We believe clients get better commercial outcomes when their lawyers work closely side by side with them in order to get to know their business and tailor our advice. As a result, we see and get to solutions quicker because we are familiar with our client's commercial realities and we can protect their interests without over-emphasising risks.

Our firm has a particularly strong presence in the start-up ecosystem and, in addition to being a preferred external legal advisor for Enterprise Ireland, we act for a significant number of start-up and early stage companies - across the range of sectors / industries at the centre of business in Ireland - on the full range of business law issues that arise from incorporation through growth and expansion to ultimate realisation.

Máire Cunningham, head of Beauchamps' Enterprise Team, explains why the firm decided to support the Starting Strong initiative:

"As a Firm with a particularly strong cohort of female law firm partners and being one of the first legal firms in Ireland to appoint a female Managing Partner, we have always been strong supporters of women reaching their full business potential. We also firmly believe that the key to success in business is getting it right from the start. This is something we can actively assist female entrepreneurs to do through our continued involvement in Going for Growth's Starting Strong programme."
